The Darien Canal.

If the estimate of the cost and profits of the Darien canal be correct, the en-terprise will be one of the best paying nvestments the world has ever seen .-

It is estimated that the saving to commerce will pay the cost of construction in at most four years. The amount saved to American trade annually will be nearly $36,000,000, to British trade,

$9,950,000. and to the trade of the world, $48,000,000. The question before the canal congress narrowed down to which was the better of two plans, one of which provided for locks and the other a tunnel. The latter plan has been adopted. The tunnel plan proposes to make a canal opening on the Atlantic side into the Gulf of Darien at Acanto, seven miles southeast of Cape Tiburton,

The line of the canal then runs southwesterly till it reaches a high mountain range which lies nearly parallel with the Atlantic coast line. Here the real difficulty is encountered.

A tunnel through the mountain range several miles long will have to be con-structed. It will be nearly 120 feet high, measuring from the water-line, and fifty-three feet wide at the bottom, will be $100,000,000.

Robin's Choice. The Maple shook her tassels With a sweet refreshing sound And a shower of scarlet blossom Fell thick upon the ground. With a soft, persuasive murmur She waved her arms, and said 'Come hither, Richard Robin, With your russet coat and red! Within my shady branches There is quietude and rest; Come hither, Richard Robin, And build your cozy nest.'

The Pine-tree looked and listened, And she sighed, both sad and sweet,

For she had no graceful blossoms To fling at Robin's feet; So she only waved her branches. And persuasively she said: 'You hear her, Richard Robin, And you nod your russet head: But I have naught to offer; And I can only weep; But one thing, Richard Robin, I'll rock your babes to sleep !

Dick Robin looked and listened, As he plumed his ruddy breast, And before the week had ended He had built a cozy nest. There, half hidden in the branches It is built full warm and deep, And four little chirping robins, The Pine-tree rocks to sleep.

She was young, not over twenty-five, but the complexion was sadly faded, and faint lines were already marking the white forehead, while the tired eyes told of care, and hinted strongly of an unsatisfied heart.

'I truly believe, if she takes up her old burdens at once, that before the year has passed the grave or an insane asylum will receive her.'

A Western Cyclone. The Fashions.

A special dispatch from Independence, Mo., in regard to the cyclone says: The storm center gathered in a huge invert-ed funnel, two miles southwest of Lee's Summit, and swept at the rate of twenty miles an hour to the northeast, a distance of fifteen miles, laying waste everything in the shape of animal or vegetable life in its path, which varied in length from two hundred to three hundred feet. Numbers of houses were reduced to kindling wood, carried in some instances a distance of a quarter of a mile and then dropped in shapeless masses. Four lives were lost in the neighborhood of Lee's Summit, and about thirty persons were seriously injured. Hundreds of others were left houseless and in a des-

All the bodies were covered with thick, bluish, sulphurous mud .-The clothing was stripped off or torn to shreds; shoes were torn off the feet and the bodies burned and blackened fearfully. A dispatch from Atchison, Kansas says the committee of surgeons and citizens sent to Irving, Kansas, report that the dead are all buried and the wounded cared for. Relief committees have been organized at Irving and Frankfort, and are doing everything in their power to provide for the necessities of sufferers. Twenty persons were killed and forty eight severely wounded at or near Irving and Frankfort. Fifteen are reported killed and many wounded in the vicinity of Delphos, Ottawa county, and several casualties are reported in other parts of the country traversed by the storm. It is, therefore, certain that not less than forty persons have been killed and from seventy to eighty wounded, all of the latter very severely. The de-struction of property will foot up very large, but no reliable estimates can yet be formed of the amounts. Hundreds of houses have been destroyed and the crops in the path of the cyclone utterly ruined. The track of the cyclone varies from three-quarters of a mile to one mile in width. It occasionally left the ground for a short distance and again descended. Wherever it touched the ground it swept everything clean of houses, trees and crops. A Paris scribe tells this story about money? This is always a hard alternative for a manager, and he only resorts to it at the last moment. In this case the director was about to resign himself to it when a young girl tapped at the door of his room. 'I know Theo's role from having seen her play it so often, and I would sing it well,' she said. The manager was astonished at so much audacity. He scarcely even knew the young person. 'But you sing in the chorus, I believe, 'was his reply to the courageous girl. 'Certainly, but what does that prove?' 'Nothing, in fact; and you would venture to play this part?' 'I would.' 'You know to what separated by Breton insertion. Then you would expose yourself?' 'To be either hissed or applauded. I believe that I will be applauded.' 'What is your name?' 'Jennie Granier.' 'Well, Mile. Granier, go and dress yourself.'

The success of the little chorus girl was so great that Theo was cured, as if by enchantment, of her serious malady, and hastened to resume her role. The chorus girl relapsed into her original obscurity. Fortunately for her, a young author had witnessed her debut. Without mentioning it to any one, he wrote for her a part in conjunction with Le-cocq, and when the year following, she made her debut in 'Girofle Girofla' the astonishment was general and the applanse unanimous. Since then Granier has had many successes as the lady whose place she supplied so fortunately.

The defendant had for years used another ink. Taking samples of the two inks to a chemist, he was able after analysis to secure a solvent for the one which would not effect the other. The case came to trial. Evidence was taken as to the kind of ink each party employed. Then the chemist was called, and in the presence of the jury applied the solvent, which removed the interpolated '1,' and left the rest of the writing untouched. The Ancient Egyptians. The inventions of the Egyptians have nearly all an originality that separates them from those of other lands. Their papyrus was wholly their own, their earier alphabet, their literature and paintng. Shut up in their narrow border of fertile land along the sacred river, re-pelling all close intercourse with the barbarians without, distinguished from There is another work performed by the Black Tracker, and one in which he them in dress, manner and religion, crowded together in populous cities, the Egyptians seem to have reached instinctively a degree of skill in manufactures and the arts that were due to a long and understand the peculiarities of the laborious period of cultivation. They melt-ed it into bottles and vases of rare beauty, colored it to resemble the emerald and ruby. They made beautiful mosaics, enamels, rare combinations that even the Venetian artists have failed to equal, and discovered processes of coloring and molding that have been lost apparently forever. Egyptian glassware was exported to all parts of the Mediterranean. They built monster statues of glass, re-sembling emeralds, sixty feet high; they cut the most delicate enamels by the aid of a lens. Mentally, they were not surpassed by the modern in the pursuit of ideal purity; justice, verity, were the chief virtues of the Egyptians; the chief justice of Egypt, when he sat in judgment, wore on his breast a golden image of Truth; one Egyptian king even abolished earlied northern but seems to ished capital punishment, but seems to have stood almost alone.—Karper's

Phenomena of Rain.

One of the most curious things about rain is the inequality of its distribution, The reader is of course aware that rain fuge in the trees, imagining that they were as safe among the branches as the may be measured in inches in almost any vessel set out to catch it. The white menwho lead them are frequently as twenty-three inches of rain in the course twenty-three inches of rain in the course of the year, while one on the roof of a house caught only eighteen inches, and one on top of the abbey only twelve inches. The fact is, rain forms at a very low elevation, much lower than is generally supposed; or, if not actually formed at a very low elevation, it increases the size of the drops which come from higher levels. Thus, while Mr. Glaisher was descending in a balloon, he passed through a dry, and then through a wet fog, when the drops of rain were exceedingly fine, covering his note-book like pins' points. It is due Senator Hampton to give prominence to his views. We most heartily endorse his conservatism. It is the only way for the South to regain her prosperity. I don't think the South cares a copper who the next presidential candidate may be, as long as he is a strong national man .-They do not care where he comes from or what his financial views may be. There is a great deal of misapprehen-sion in the North as to the political condition of the negroes in the South. They seem to think that a colored man is bound to be a Republican because he is a colored man. But I know personally many colored men in South Carolina who have always been consistent Democrats, and have suffered in consequence. There are only 75,000 white voters in my State, and 90,000 colored voters. The latter, therefore, hold the balance of power. When I was elected Governor there were only 119,500 votes cast, and only 213 scattering votes were thrown against me, and I was undoubtedly elected by the colored voters, who at that time had all the machinery of elections in their hands. There was not a quarrel or a fisticuff fight at that election. The Republicans could not put a ticket in the field because the colored people were

PRICES IN ENGLAND AND THIS COUNrRY .- England was once considered a very cheap country to live in, but it is so no longer. An American family of three was found there during the war sustaining life on a shilling a day for food; now it would be difficult to do that and not resort to beggary. How could it be possible for food to be cheap when most of it is imported? House rent is lower than in New York, but not much if any cheaper than in the death last week in Chester County, S. Bread is three cents a pound and is inferior in quality. The English do not know how the "barrel" eggs here—are thirty to thirty-five cents a dozen; butter twentyfive to forty cents, and poor at that; cheese 18 to 20 per lb.; milk 10 cents a quart. Potatoes are sold by weight, but would average $1.25 a bushel. As to fruit, most of it is a luxury beyond the reach of ordinary purchasers. On a thoughtful consideration, people generally will come to the conclusion that this country is a very comfortable place to live in-Newark Daily.

SEASONABLE HINTS .- From the American Agriculturist we glean the following agricultural items :

Curing Hay in the cock is preferable to sun drying. The sweating and fermentation improve, and prevent heating in the mow or stack. The writer prefers to put up hay, after the dew is off, in moderately large cocks,-four feet wide and high,-after it has lain spread rain. The day it is drawn in, a man should start early and throw open the cocks, to get a final airing.

Calves.—A run in a good piece of Pigs for fall killing, may be forced from the start. A run at grass, and slops, will help to make a large growth, which is afterwards quickly filled up with fat. The low prices now prevailing must be offset by making more pork than formerly out of the same feed.

Rubbing Posts.—A few rubbing posts set up in pastures, will save injury to the fences. Cattle will use these conveniences very often, if provided for them, and it is worth all the trouble, to witness the enjoyment of the animals in the use of them.

Salt Boxes have frequenly been described in the American Agriculturist; as they are easily made, very useful, and the supply of salt is heathful, a few of these boxes attached to the fences of the pasture, and kept replenished with salt, will de trouble well besowed.

Hoes and Tools .- Dull tools are labor wasters. It is cheaper to use up a whole grindstone in one season, than to work with dull hoes, spades, and other tools. See that tools are ground sharp every evening; the men may do this, while they are talking and chatting over their pipes, and the tools will be ready for work in the morning.

The late Republican Senate raised the army to 25,000 men. The Democratic House only voted supplies for 20,000. It is necessary now to increase the appropriations by over five million dollars. increase is to be laid at the door of the Stalwarts. Last year the estimates were printed for the army as it required in 1840 to run the entire Government .-There is no good reason why the army should exceed 8,000 men, and the expenses $10,000,000. The time will come, it is to be hoped, when the army will be greatly reduced in numbers and the expenses in proportion .- Wilmington Star.

We Strive to Give Satisfaction.

There are at present located in the South two firms of Organ and Fished dealers, who make it their business to buy up second-hand instruments, and, after retouching them, advertise them as new, at seemingly low prices, the imposition not being discovered until the instrument is paid for.

There are also Organ dealers advertising from New Jersey, claiming to be manufacturers, who, instead of manufacturing the instruments they advertise. purchase them from "Cheap John" makers, whose sole object is to sell. If any person wishes to be convinced of the above, I ask them, purely for their own benefit, to communicate with me, in whatever way they please, and I will freely undertake to supply all information needed, and they can then choose for themselves in purchas

DITCHING.—A great deal of ditching has been done the past winter and spring, in the low wet lands and meadows. Considerable expense is thus incurred annually. If all persons concerned or interested would strive to keep the sand from washing down into the streams from old field bill-sides, much trouble and damage would be saved to them and others. Where there is a will there is a way.

Some Grayson and Carroll County friends called on us a few days since and gave favorable accounts of the apple crop in their neighborhoods. Asheville papers say that as a general thing, the apple erop throughout Western North Carolina was almost wholly destroyed by the severe frosts in the early portion of May. In some localities there will be a fair crop, but to a very large extent the crop was ruined.

Poisoned Honey.—We have often heard of poisoned wild honey, and its bad effects when eaten. The Mount Airy Visitor gives a point in case by stating that a colored family by the name of Bryant of Long Creek, Surry County, were poisoned by eating wild honey taken from a bee tree. Several members of the family have died. Also, that George Greggs, a few miles from Mt. Airy, was bitten by a highland moccasin snake, from the effects of which he died.

Mt. Airy certainly deserves a Railroad, and I cant see but what Salem and Winston and I can't see but what Salem and Winston would be standing in their own light to oppose it. Any number of building lots, finely situated can be bought for from $100 to $125. A tall spire pointed heavenward, greeted our eyes, bearing testimony to the growth of religion in their midst. The money for the building of the church was furnished by Mr. R. Galloway, who, we were told, recently became a member of that church. Our ascent up Fancy Gap was truly splendid, as the sky was unclouded and the atmosphere pure. The almost discouraged brethren now began to feast their eyes, and forget the mud. We stopped at many points to look, and once caught a glance of the noted "Devil's Den." From the top we moved westward, in order to reach the moved westward, in order to reach the quarters of John Smith, formerly of Davidson. We got there after going over ridges and spurs, higher and higher, until we askand spurs, higher and higher, until we asked, "won't we soon get to where they have planked up the end of the world." Our views almost coincided with those of a traveler through Kentucky, "No wonder they make a great deal of grain, for they have set the world on edge aand are cultivating both sides." At Mr. Smith's we were treated to as much good mountain milk and butter as we could use. The latter is bringing only 10 cents per pound there.

Thursday morning we went to the "bluff of the mounting;" met up with a "boomer" and heard wonderful tales. We were startled by the information that the "snake den" was near by. Church Combs, (of course you know him) declared that he killed forty snakes one morning before breakfast, and it was an unfavorable time for snakes at that. These people spurn the low-landers. "Why we can git up y'arly and see the folks down yander raise their fires and count every shanty in the hollers." From our position we had a view of Dob-son Court house 25 miles distant son Court house, 25 miles distant.

Next day we visited the "Devil's Den" and spent some time in looking for him, but he does not like a preacher's company, and would not come out.

Our next point was Hillsville, the seat of Carroll County, Va. Some improvements have been made recently. The Presbyterians have a new church, a very neat and comfortable building. The town was alive Lug with excited men, awaiting returns from the precincts, of yesterday's (23rd ult.) election. We spent Sunday, 25th ult., in a neighborhood where I used to preach, and while riding along, what should I see but "58 miles to the Hardware Store of S. E. Allen, Winston N. C."

Mount Bethel was visited on our way homeward. I preached on Tuesday to that good people, where I labored for seven years. We arrived at home again all the better for our trip.
To-day, June 5th, I attended the Yadkin

College Commencement. A large crowd was in attendance. Several excellent ad-dresses were delivered by the students. After collation, the Rev. Mr. Clark, D. D., of Pittsburg, delivered an address, criticising fashion, and the various professions. He was followed by Mr. Gray, of Salisbury.

The Salisbury Cornet Band, No. 2., dis coursed some excellent music.

It is a pity that-the Moravian Church can not have a good country school in some convenient place where our own members, as well as others, might send their sons and daughters, and save the expense of paying high prices for board. We can have one if every one would do their part and work for the good of the cause. 1 can think of no location for such an institution than berg.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

So we sat us down on the sunny dike, Where the white pondlines teeter, And I went to fishing like quaint old Ike, And she like Simon Peter.

All the noon I lay in the light of her eyes, And dreamily watched and waited; But the fish were cunning, and would not rise And the baiter alone was baited.

FOR THE FARMER'S HOUSEHOLD.

We have found that plowing corn as soon as it up not only destroys all contemporaneous vegetation before it has time to rob the young plants of any of their sustenance, but that it lossens up the soil to the admission of the sun and air, the former to supply the necessary heat and the latter to furnish the needed moisture. How this is done we will now endeavor to explain: The air is composed principally of two gases, oxygen and nitrogen, together with a small percentage of carbonic acid, the latter being a necessary constituent of vegetable life. The air is also imbued with moisture. Watery vapor is ever present therein, although varying in quantileast in midwinter and most in the hot days of summer. There are also min-gled with the air many other substances in the shape of vapor, such as are given off by the decay of animal and vegetable matter, all fertilizing in their effect, but sometimes hartful to animal life.

In this constitution of the atmosphere we can discover its beautiful adaptation to the wants of animals and plants-the oxygen, nitrogen and carbonic scid to supply the food, and the watery vapor to furnish the moisture. The air also by its subtlety diffuses itself everywhere. Into every pore of the soil it finds its caping, give place to other and purer supplies. Not only is moisture thus supplied from the atmosphere, but the soil, in its loosened condition, has power to arrest and hold for the plant moisture drawn up from below by capillary attraction, and thus the tender young plant is better enabled to withstand the drving effects of the summer's sun. But this is not all. By this early and complete stirring of the soil-cutting the roots, if you please, of the tender plants— the cultivation is ended before harvest, by which time the spur roots of the corn—those upon which it depends for its full development-shoot out from the that instead of it being an injury it will more effectually killing the grass, but in opening up the soil to the admission of the atmosphere, which, impregnated as it is with fertilizing gases, immediately rushes in, and striking the colder subsoil becomes condensed and supplies the roots with moisture.

The London Dairyman gives the following directions for making cream cheese, a variety popular in England. On the plans given, any villager, or farmer's wife, can make the finest of cheese for table use, whenever so inclined. Those not having the cream can buy it. 'Take a quart of cream, and if not desired to be very rich, add thereto one pint of new milk; warm it in hot or until it is about the heat of milk from the cow, add a tablespoonful of ren-nel, let it stand till thick; then break slightly with a spoon, and place it in the frame in which you have previously put a fine canvas cloth; press it tightly with a weight; let it stand a few hours, then put a finer cloth in the frame, and shift the cheese into it. Sprinkle a little salt over the cloth. It will be fit for use in a day or two. To make a rich cream cheese without rennet, take any quantity of cream and put it into a wet cloth, tie it up and hang it in a cool place for seven or eight days. Then take it from the cloth, and put into a mold in another cloth, with a weight upon it, for two or three days longer. Turn twice a day,

When Whent Should be Cut. There has been some diversity of opinion as to the best time to cut wheat, judging from the common practice of ripe, or at least when the grain has be-come hard. The Germantown Telegraph holds that this is no doubt an error, and one of more importance than many sup-pose. It adds: 'It should be remembered that wheat is composed of gluten, starch and bran. Gluten is the nour-ishing quality of the grain, makes the flour stick together in the hands of the baker, and gives weight to the grain and there is the greatest quantity of gluten in the grain just when the straw is yellow two or three joints from the ground, the head turns downward, and you can mash a grain between your thumb and finger without producing any milk. It may therefore be set down as an indisputable truth that every day the rightly Marian Evans, spinster. wheat stands after this stage of its ripe ness, the gluten decreases in quantity and the bran increases in thickness, while and it will be fit for use.'

This mixture eaten by degrees or all at once, will allay the feverish thirst and quiet the disturbed qualmish stomach, as it is not sweet enough to be nauseous.

WARM SLAW.—Slice a head of cabbage fine; put it in a stew pan, with a little water, and scald well; sprinkle salt, pepper and sugar over it; then take two-thirds of a teacup of vinegar, one-third of a teacup of water, one egg, one-half teaspoonful of flour, well mixed together; pour it over the cabbage, and let it come to a boil, when it is ready for the Doing UP LACE CURTAINS .- Put the curtains to soak in lukewarm water, turning over and clapping between your hands two or three times during the twenty-four hours that they remain in the water. Then if you have a wringer, fold smoothly and put through loosely; repeated two or three days if very much soiled and smoked. The last time they are put to soak, add to every gallon of water two cunces of pulverized borax, after which put them on to boil in this water. When scalded a short time rinse thoroughly, and make a thin starch, with a trifle of bluing in. Now pin cr sew to your carpets some sheets, which done, wring out the curtains and pin right side down upon the sheets, putting the pins in every two inches. Stretch them evenly, but take care not to draw out of shape. Let them be until dry, when go over with a hot flat-iron, keeping a thin cloth or paper between the iron and curtain; then remove the pins, and your curtains are ready to hang.

How a Home was Wrecked. A recent case in the divorce court in Cincinnati presents a striking example of the power for evil a vicious woman way. When there it yields its oxygen, its nitrogen, and its carbonic acid, as well to hasten the decay of vegetable matter already dead, as to promote the growth of the living plant. The heat of the sun warms the soil and expands these imprisoned gases, which, partially estable imprisoned gases, which and prosperous in his future prospects. To-day his home is broken up, and with character and reputation ruined, he is a social outcast and a wanderer. The woman to whom he owes his ruin is Lou Whitlook, the discarded wife of a photographer. She had neither beauty, culture nor engaging manners, but des pite all this, Mr. Ruff fell a victim to her wiles, notwithstanding that his own wife was a handsome, refined, amiable lady, and a good wife and mother to his children. Their intrigues, carried on secretly at first, were at last discovered, and abandoning his happy home, his loving wife and charming children, the infatuated man gave up his business, stalk a few inches above ground, and and with his mistress visited New York, striking downward until they reach the surface, there find everything in readiness to receive them and tender them in satisfying her luxurious wants. Together they lived a short year in seeming happiness, when, sad to relate, the husband again fell into the toils of his former enslaver. He met her at a place of amusement, and forgetting all his former protestations, he again abandoned all to the in-dulgence of an illicit love. To the pleading and remonstrances of his faithful and injured wife he replied with oaths and blows, and flying from him with her children, she sought refuge in the home of her childhood. Ruff and his mistress fled to Canada, and for the second time the divorce court has granted the unfortunate wife a final separation from her

> George Eliot's Domestic Relations. Some of the newspapers mention as a very remarkable circumstance that Geo. Eliot, the distinguished novelist, since the death of her 'husband,' has determined to resume her 'maiden name,' Marion Evans, so far as her social relations are concerned. It ought to be well known to persons at all acquainted with, or interested in, the eminent novelist that she was never Mrs. Lewes except call her so because it was more convenot obtain a divorce in the courts, because he had once condoned her offense. After that Marian Evans and he formed their close, intellectual friendship, which lation between man and woman having no tie of blood can ordinarily be. For their own mental and spiritual needs, and, after consultation with their near-est friends, some of the best and most gifted people in England, they decided to live under the same roof, and brave conventionality. They would have been legally married had Mrs. Lewes had the goodness to die. But she lived, and still lives. Experiments made in Toulon, in the French dock yard, showed that in an average of seven tensile tests the ailanthus broke with a weight of 72,186 pounds; the elm yielded to 54 806 pounds, and the oak broke under a weight of 43 434 pounds. The word is weight of 43,434 pounds. The wood is at first of a pale straw color, but grows somewhat darker with age, and takes a high polish. For cabinet making and ndoor work its silver grain and satiny luster are very pleasing; and as regards freedom from warping and shrinking, it is said to be superior to walnut, and fully equal to mahogany.

A steamer is loading at New Haven, eggs sold, $97 50; twenty-two average of those sold, $5.39; total, $102.89; cost of A Great Orchard.

The largest orchard in the world in doubtless that owned and worked very successfully by Mr. Robert McKinstry, of Hudson, Columbia county, New York. The orchard is situated on the east bank of the Hudson river, on high, rolling table-land, and contains more than 24,-000 apple trees, 1,700 pears, 4 000 cherries, 500 peaches, 200 plums, 200 crabs, 1,500 vines, 6,000 currants and 200 chestnuts. The varieties grown are: Bhode Island greening, 7,000; Baldwins, 6,000; King of Tompkins County, 4,000; Astrachans, 800; Northern Spy, 500; Wagener, 500; Gravenstem, 400; Cranberry Pippins, 200; Ben Davis, 200; Duchess of Oldenburg, 200; with Jonathans, Hubbardstons, Cayugas, Vanderveers, Pearmains, Peck's Pleasants, Twenty-ounce Pippins, Russets and others in less number.

The pears are Bartlett, B. d'Anjou, Sheldon, Seckel and Lawrence chiefly. Of cherries there are twenty-eight varie The orchards are remarkably thrifty, and the oldest trees are about twenty years old. The soil is dry, rolling gravel, with some limestone; the trees are planted twenty feet apart, and do not by any means seem to be crowded. The ground is plowed several times in the year and kept fallow; except, when thought advisable, it is seeded clover. The orchard is intersected by roads over six miles in length for the passage of wagons, and is bounded by a continuous row of apple trees, set ten feet apart, for four miles and a half .-The apple crop of last year was 30,000 barrels. Twenty-four men and fourteen horses are employed in hauling out the crop or in plowing.

The success of this orchard has not been achieved, nor is it maintained, without the closest supervision and most industrious work. Suckers and sprouts are removed as soon as seen, the borers are watched and followed with vigor .-Wires are used to reach them in their burrows, and the damaged bark is removed with chisels. As trees fall others are planted in their places.

As the market for good fruit is ex-tending every year, and foreign customers are seeking supplies, the business of growing fruit cannot fail to be profitable and permanent. No other business pays better than this for the most skillful attention and management; indeed, with-out these, it is in vain to expect a crop that will sell in the market for remune ative prices. Good fruit sells itself, and the grower is soon sought for by the purchasers. Those who desire to take a lesson in things appertaining to the business, and to prove the truth of these facts, may well study the ways and methods of Mr. McKinstry and his

The innocent young man professed to be the lucky drawer of lottery prize, and invited his acquaintance to go with him while he got the noney. The young man led the way to a room in the alley-way leading from Court-street to Cornhill. Having secured the prize the young fellow com-menced to gamble with his money, and soon induced the Belfast man to loan m considerable money on bank checks which he drew. The game was worked with a long sigh of relief, 'Dot ish not so smoothly and plausibly that several hundred dollars of our friend's cash was transferred to the lottery-dealer's till, the till being at last closed and the money declared forfeited. Our friend, being a man of nerve, proceeded to knock down the lottery-dealer, wrench open the drawer, and transfer the conents to his pocket. A confederate, who came to the rescue, was also knocked down. The Belfast man then finding the door fastened from the outside kicked it open and gained the street. Meeting there the innocent young man afore-said, the two proceeded to the steamer Cambridge, where, on counting the money, our friend found that he had something over $400 more in good money than he had when he entered the lottery shop. He returned to the smooth young man the amount that he had staked and ost, retaining 870 in excess of his dis bursements which he found among the funds he had clutched. The Mound Builders of the South.

A New Orleans clergyman who has investigated the subject of the mound builders, recently delivered a lecture in which he said: The Mississippi Valley wes almost as large as the entire of Europe. There was every evidence to prove that it was numerously populated, and the mounds themselves establish conclusive evidence that the people were warlike and semi-civilized, and they had made considerable advancement in mechanical arts, and worshiped the sun. He mentioned instances of mounds on the Yazoo, Sunflower and other rivers; also some shell mounds near Natchez, in North Louisiana, and slong the coast, made of the mussel. In the East, West and Northwest, the mounds were usually tall embankments, but in all there were some general points of the resemplance. In Wisconsin there are mounds of various forms representing animal life, and some were formed like men. For some distance south of the Ohio they are conical-shaped, and in the South, as a rule, the mounds were more regular in outline and more numerous. Here also can be found traces of bricks, and some of the mounds were vast burial grounds; a long strip of territory, taking n a portion of Ohio and Tennessee, was a vast wilderness, abounding in wild beasts and other game, and here the Chectaws, Chickataws and other tribes had a common hunting ground. It was evident that this had been once inhabited from the amount of fossil remains found in it. He saw graves in the mounds around Nashville, and pots and other articles of domestic use. In fact, Tennessee was one large burial ground,

A beautiful lamp-shade, almost rivaling a porcelain one, can be made out of heets of fine, thin Bristol board. Cut the sheets the shape of the wire frame, making a scalloped edge and bot-tom by placing a twenty-five cent piece on the edge and drawing a pencil around Then, when you have repeated this all along on both sides, cut half of the mark away. Procure a number of beautifully-colored autumn leaves, either natural or embossed ones, and break off the stems close to the leaves. Now paint a stem or vine all around the shade, and oin the leaves to it in natural order. sticking them on with gum tragacanth. When you have completed the wreath let it lay under pressure for a few hours, then give the whole a coat of colorles varnish. When thoroughly dry, join the shade together with gum, pres it dry with a hot iron; then fasten it to the wire frame. This shade will give a seft, mellow light, and well repay the river, New York, in an almost exhausted trouble to make it.

A Narrow Escape. A remarkable case of mistaken iden-tity occurred at St. Louis recently. Herman Shuster in the morning awoke and found himself dead. At least the newspapers said he was dead and that his body was at the morgue. Mr. Shuster went to the place mentioned and there, sure enough, found himself laid out on slab as dead as anybody could wish. Mr. Shuster was alarmed. The forehead of the corpse was his, the hair and mustache were the color of his, and the body would not vary in weight five pounds from his own. The clothes, also, exactly like those adjoining Mr Shuster's person. 'Vot ish de golor of his eyes?' asked Herman of Dr. Ainbaugh. The dootor turned up the corpse's eyelids and found that the eyes were blue, 'Dot is petter,' said Herman, mine pody. Dose is plue and mine is plack. Vot a narrow escape-vot a glose gall dose vas !'

Southern Generals. 'Fighting Joe' Hooker, in a conversation with a newspaper man, said, speaking of the general officers of the Southern army: 'General Joe Johnston was the best soldier the South had. Gen. Lee was great because of his nice sense of honor. When he invaded Pennsylvania Lee paid for everything he got. He paid in Confederate money, but that was what he was paid in, and he had no other. But he paid it out, and even when he passed through those towns in Pennsylvania he put guards around their stores and protected their g ods, allowing nothing to be taken. Even clothes and boots and shoes, which they needed so much, were not allowed to be taken. This was not so much generalship as it was chivalry, but it made the man who did it a great figure in the con-

Tired Razors. Barbers often assert that razors get tired of shaving, and that they will perform satisfactorily if permitted to rest for a time. It has been found by micro-scopic examination that the tired razor. from long stropping by the same hand and in the same direction, has the ultimate fibers of its surface or edge all arranged in one direction, like the edge of piece of cut velvet; but after a month's est these fibers rearrange themselves heterogeneously, crossing each other and presenting a saw-like edge, each fiber supporting its fellow, and hence cutting the beard instead of being forced down flat without cutting, as when laid by.

New Orleans Residents' Petition. Many of the present holders of the lands in New Orleans conceded to Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines by the decision of the United States circuit court have petitioned the city authorities to attempt a settlement of the judgments against them. They say that so far Mrs, Gaines has left them in possession of the prop-erty, and has not attempted to execute her money judgments, and that she announces her willingness to enter into any reasonable arrangement with the city authorities by which they may re-tain possession and be quieted in their

The Cotten Trade. The report of the national cotton ex change shows that the cotton movement by rail routes this season is the largest ever known. There has been an increase of 186,651 bales in the direct shipments by rail from producers to Northern mills. The receipts of cotton at all United States ports for the year ending April 30, were 4 283,641, against 4 183,-552 last year. These figures give gratifying evidence that the importance of this great staple to the industries of the country is to be still further increased.

This is the time of the year when the boy who has accidentally changed shirts with a companion, while enjoying the surreptitions swim, tells his mother, she discovers the swap, that the other boy's mother took a fancy to his shirt and borrowed it as a pattern to make some shirts from for her little boy. In a little while the seeds will com-mence to push out their spiry leaves from every part of the sponge, and fall-ing down in graceful tendrils as they rapidly increase, there will soon be formed a pretty mass of flowing green fringe, that will remain bright and cheerful to the eye for a long time. If carefully sprinkled later on, the clover will bloom before the mass decays at the roots.

An English Family.

Lord Derby is one of the richest peers of England, not more than four or five having a larger income. It is said to be about $5,000,000 a year. He has no children. His wife has a separate income of $100,000 a year. He has no expensive tastes, cares nothing for sport, and rarely enters his stables. His only brother, and heir to the title, is Colonel Stanley, secretary of war, who inherited $500,000 from his father. Lord Derby and his father had few tastes or sympa-thies in common, and Colonel Stanley was the favorite son. Lord Derby takes his title from the Handred of West Derby, in the county of Lancashire, not from the county or town of the name in mid-England. The senior branch of the Stanleys is represented in direct line by Sir John Stanley, who like all his ancestors, is a Roman Catholic. The ancient family seat, Hooton, in Cheshire, was sold about twenty years ago to Liverpool banker, in consequence of the extravagance of Sir John's brother. It had been five hundred years in the family.

The Best Remedy Known to Man Dr. Clark Johnson having associated himse with Mr. Edwin Eastman, an escaped captive, lon a slave to Wakametkla, the medicine man of the Comanches, is now prepared to lend his aid in the Introduction of the wonderful remedy of that tribe. The experience of Mr. Eastman being similar that of Mrs. Chas. Jones and son, of Washington Co., Iowa, an account of whose sufferings wenthrillingly narrated in the New York Herald of Dec 15th. 1878, the facts of which are so widen known, and so nearly parallel, that but little mention of Mr. Eastman's experiences will be given here. They are, however, published in a neat volume of 300 pages, entitled, "Sevenand Nino Yoan Among the Comanches and Apaches," of which mention will be made hereafter. Suffice it to say, that for several years, Mr. Eastman, while a captive, was compelled to gather the Foots, runs, barks, herbs and berries of which Wakametkla's medicine was made, and is still prepared to provide the SANE materials for the successful introduction of the medicine to the world; and assures the public that the remedy is the same now as when Wakametkla compelled him to make it. The Best Remedy Known to Man
